

Daily Oil

In 2022, UN Secretary-General Antonio Guterres said...

"We need to hold the fossil fuel companies and their enablers to account"

Are the Daily Mail presenting a balanced view of climate breakdown, or are they biased - enabling the fossil fuel companies to delay a just transition to clean energy and cause significant harm to humanity?

Let's have a look ...

A new report by DeSmog examining Daily Mail output this year reveals:

- All 37 comment pieces written on environmental topics were anti-green – they undermined net zero targets, mocked environmental protests or underplayed the impacts of climate change.
- Nearly a third (30 percent) of the Daily Mail's online editorial comment pieces, expressing the newspaper's views, contained climate scepticism.

Does that seem balanced to you?

DeSmog

Please turn over for a Christmas Quiz

Let's talk COP

COP 28 is under way in the UAE and world leaders are working to see how they can keep the Paris Agreement of below 2°C alive. It got off to a bad start with COP president Sultan Al Jaber, also chief of UAE's national oil company Adnoc., declaring...

there is 'no science' to suggest phasing out fossil fuels will limit global warming to 1.5°C and doing so would 'take us back into caves'.

This is a stale climate denial trope that would sit comfortably in a Daily Mail opinion piece!

It is also blatantly wrong as the IEA shows here -

Christmas Quiz

Q) Apart from world leaders, who else is admitted to COP 28 to urgently reduce carbon emissions?

A) Well, there are at least 2,456 fossil fuel lobbyists. That's four times the number of fossil fuel representatives compared to COP 27 last year and seven times the number of indigenous representatives (KBPO). Why???

Q) Has Sultan Al Jaber committed to phasing out toxic oil and gas production as advised by the IPCC?

A) No, Adnoc oil is expanding their oil production - but they will produce a lot more oil and gas more cleanly!

Bonus Q) Guess who Sultan Al-Jaber is employing to run COP (OUT) 28?

Bonus A) The Daily Mail Group Trust event company (DeSmog)...you couldn't make it up!

